

ECO-FRIENDLY SUNSCREEN GUIDE

Hormone disruptors, toxins, carcinogens, additives, preservatives in many popular sunscreens can negatively effect corals, marine life, people. Hawai'i DLNR strongly advises against using many of these chemical sunscreen ingredients near coral reefs; while they are already banned from some marine preserves. Look out for: oxybenzone, homosalate, octisalate, octinoxate, octocrylene, avobenzone, dimethicone, parabens, BHT, nanoparticles, propylene glycol, fragrances, retinyl palmitate....

Our Eco-Safe & Reef-Friendlier Guide includes broad spectrum mineral sunscreens preferably with non-nano zinc / or titanium as active ingredient. Look for mineral content of 18%+ and make sure to apply an adequate amount. Some brands are formulated for water / sports  denotes very water resistant with no water-soluble fillers (H2O, Aloe, Alcohols). If you go in the water, these stay on your skin. Avoid aerosols for outdoor application: these do not apply evenly, atomize toxins, make them airborne, travel hundreds of feet in the wind, get into people's lungs, coat sand & enter the ocean at high tide. FDA recommends to never spray directly on children.

Eco-Safe & Reef Friendlier Sunscreens are sold in thousands of surf / paddle / dive shops, natural food, convenience, drug stores, grocery, boutiques... If your fave spot doesn't stock any, pass this pdf along to their buyer! We've included hyperlinks to help you shop direct. Some may seem more costly, but many are concentrated formulations, utilizing pure quality NonGMO, Organic Ingredients, Certified Natural, Cruelty Free, etc.
